Head of NM's MVD chief abruptly resigns post

SANTA FE (AP) — The head of New Mexico's Motor Vehicle Division has quit.

The Santa Fe New Mexican says Keith Perry abruptly resigned last week.

That was after Taxation and Revenue Secretary Demesia Padilla "raised some concerns" about the general management of the division.

Padilla says Perry wasn't as aggressive as he would have liked for him to have been in the job.

Spokesman S.U. Mahesh says Perry's resignation after eight months had "absolutely nothing to do" with the recent controversial effort by the agency to verify the residency of foreign nationals who have New Mexico driver's licenses.

Until a permanent replacement for Perry is hired, the Motor Vehicle Division will be run by Padilla and Deputy Secretary John Monforte.

NRC reactivates license for uranium mining firm

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Hydro Resources Inc. is one step closer to beginning its uranium mining operations in western New Mexico.

The company says the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has reactivated its license for in-situ leach mining on 10 claims near Churchrock, N.M. The process involves injecting chemicals into the ground to release uranium.

Environmentalists and some residents of the neighboring Navajo reservation have been critical of the proposal.

A spokesman for Hydro

Resource's parent firm, Texas-based Uranium Resources Inc., says the license is an important step but the company still needs approval from the state Environment Department.

The company is also conducting a feasibility study. The fate of the project will ultimately depend on the market for the natural resource.

Remi Berdoza and Courtney Solomon couldn't make up their minds about being happy or sad sheep during a Hobbs Municipal Schools production of The Secret Garden. Students from College Lane, Broadmoor, Sanger and Will Rogers landed roles in the performance.
